

Dustin Lee Bair, Hometown Hero

"Firefighting must be in my blood."

Meet your neighbor,
Dustin Lee Bair.

Dustin's passion for firefighting started young,

when his grandfather and uncle inspired him to join them at the volunteer fire department.

Just after high school graduation in 2007, Warwick Honor Roll student Dustin signed on with the Brickerville Fire Company. "Firefighting must be in my blood," he laughs.

But in July 2009, he was struck by a car while working as a landscaper. He suffered serious injuries from which he continues to recover. But that's never held him back.

Between painful surgeries and lengthy hospital stays, you can still find Dustin cleaning and polishing Brickerville's fire engines. "It's fun," he says.

The encouragement of those he volunteers with helps Dustin meet the challenges along his road to recovery. And while the Brickerville fire corps rallies 'round Dustin while he is in need, this Hometown Hero continually returns the favor by giving back to others.

Perhaps as he was inspired, Dustin may inspire you to volunteer. Your hometown fire and ambulance companies need you. And the need is now.
