

Gardner Family, Hometown Heroes

Meet your neighbors, the Gardners.

You can tell a fellow was brought up right when he’s the one setting the example for the family to follow.

Now in college, Adam Gardner started a long-term family affair by volunteering with the Brickerville Fire Company as a high school student. These days Adam does double duty as an EMT and firefighter.

“Our son inspired the rest of us to get involved,” dad Kurt Gardner says. Mom Heidi agrees, adding, “It’s an excellent way to give back to the community.”

By day, Heidi’s a special education teacher and Kurt’s an attorney. In the evening you’ll find Heidi running with the Brickerville Ambulance and helping out with the Fire Company Auxiliary. Kurt wears the uniform of the Brickerville Fire Company Fire Police. Both will be serving during 2012 as officers in their organizations. Grad school student Lyndsay is a vital member of the company’s Auxiliary.

Your fire and ambulance companies need more Hometown Hero volunteers like the Gardners. They need you – now.
