

Randy Dauberman, Hometown Hero

"...we can continue to offer Emergency Medical Services at low cost."

Meet your neighbor, Randy Dauberman.

When Randy moved to Rothsville from his native North Central Pennsylvania in '73, he settled just a stone's throw from the local fire hall. "Each time the alarm sounded, I wanted to do something to help," he recalls with a grin.

Well, ten years later, he got his wish. And the whole community has benefited from his selflessness ever since.

Randy kicked off his volunteer public service career in 1983 with the local Fire Police. In short order, he moved over to the Rothsville Ambulance Corp. These days, this Hometown Hero saves lives as an Emergency Medical Team (EMT) Crew Chief, and raises money as head of the ambulance corps' annual fund drive.

"With volunteers, we can continue to offer Emergency Medical Services at low cost." But it takes everyone's support.

It's time to step up and help out. Your hometown fire and ambulance companies need you to volunteer today.
